

Learning on the Go:

How students use and want to use mobile devices for school work

Students believe that tablets will help them learn and lighten their backpacks

Attitudes Towards Tablets and Digital Textbooks (% Strongly/Somewhat Agree)

Tablets will change the way students will learn in the future

92%

Tablets make learning more fun

90%

I would like to use digital textbooks instead of traditional print textbooks so that I wouldn't have to carry so much on my back

87%

Tablets help students do better in classes

82%

My backpack is very heavy because of all the textbooks I carry

77%

Almost one-third of students in grades 4-12 already own a tablet, and over 40% own a smartphone

Most students (69%) would like to use mobile devices more often in class

Total tablet ownership: 31% (net)

Device Ownership

Laptop computer

50%

Smartphone

43%

Desktop computer

37%

Small tablet

18%

Full-sized tablet

14%

Basic e-book reader

12%

Netbook

7%

None of these

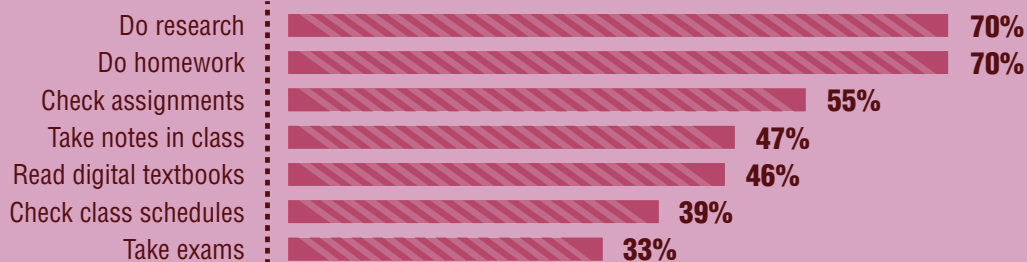

13%

Students mostly want mobile devices to automate tasks that they already do now

Almost half of students want to use a full-size tablet to read digital textbooks

How Students Want to Use a Full-Size Tablet

Learning on the Go:

How students use and want to use mobile devices for school work

Hispanic students are more likely to own a tablet than non-Hispanics

Black and Hispanic students are more likely to own a smartphone than white students

One-third of elementary, middle and high school students said that they have used a tablet for school work this academic year

Full-sized tablet

34%

Small tablet

32%

Smartphone

44%

Among students who use a tablet for school work, more than half use a device that they own personally, rather than borrow from the school

Ownership of Tablet Used for School Work

(Among those who use a tablet for school work)

